

- Normal working trays have similar vapour space density above the froth as in columns top and below the lowest tray due to the low liquid entrainment.
- The froth shows a relative flat gradient of density.
- For all trays the density profile is similar and uniform.
- There is only slight weeping depending on tray type.